

Go with the Flow

Learn, Dance & Grow

Greetings All!

Last month, I started on a baseball analogy to pique your interest in our education program. We started with our lead-off hitter (Eric Henerlau telling us “What’s Right with Dancing”) and discussing the team uniforms (Sew & Save). That covers only two of the needs of a team.

It’s the bottom of the ninth, men on first and second. The batter is at the plate, but what is he to do? For that, we look to the dugout and the manager to call the play. What better way to become a square dance manager than to participate in our LCP (Leadership Certification Program) sessions. No need to track down on-line courses; we offer classes right here to equip you with the information needed to grow and run a club. Topics cover everything from building, funding and advertising all the way to handling the insurance needs. Stop by the education office and see how we can help you and your club!

But, sometimes you just need a little extra practice or experience at your position. Instead of hiring private coaches or being bussed to an offsite training camp, look to our clinic offerings. All the various levels have sessions to help you learn something new or to just improve what you already know. They are typically in the morning – perfect way to start your day. Want to attempt something brand new? Hex squares? Tandem Squares? Scottish Dancing? Again, check out our offerings and give it a try.

Join us in the next issue when we finish showing off our team.
